You may have noticed things have been a bit quiet around here, there are a couple of reasons for this first one is from the broken rib during the fantastic ride at Briagolong and the other one is because I've just moved from Canberra to Adelaide.

The whole reason I started this website was to meet some local riders, I was doing a lot of solo riding out the back of Canberra and that is not always a great idea. I've met some great people as a result of the website from all around Australia not just Canberra.

The site will continue... However I do have to sort some more important things out first. Sorry to everyone who emailed me lately I will respond soon.
